FRONT YARD

FRONT YARD: The white brick planter has yellow Iris, that bloom early in the summer, in May or June. The stems can be cut down after they are finished blooming. They can be separated in the spring or fall. There are daylilies (usually bloom in July) along the right front of the house, with arborvitae close to the house.

To the right of the front door are light pink peonies. They usually bloom in early June.

Also along the front left are daylilies, colorful tulips (first to bloom each spring) and wild geraniums, and we add annuals.

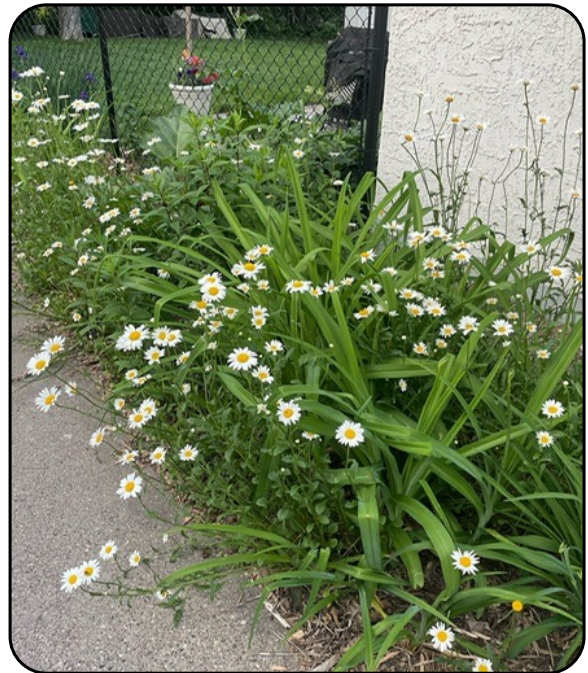

On the east side of the front of the house are hot pink peonies.

WEST SIDE YARD

SIDE/WEST YARD: Along the west side of the house are daylilies, hostas, wild daisies, rhubarb and phlox. The rhubarb is huge, and you can make lots of desserts with it. Enough to share with friends and family.

BACKYARD

BACKYARD: In the back of the house, just at the end of the steps to the back door, are daylilies and iris. The iris bloom early and the daylilies in about July.

In the north east corner of the backyard is a shade garden with stepping stones. It contains ferns, hostas, milk weed (which attracts lots of butterflies) and phlox. This garden grows and turns green by June.

BACKYARD

BACKYARD: In the back of the house, there are hostas and lilies along the house. At the south west corner of the back yard is another large rhubarb plant. This can be harvested very early in the spring, usually late April or May. It should be cut back at the end of summer and will grow back quickly in the spring.

Along the west side fence in the back yard are beautiful multicolor hydrangeas- these were planted last year so should continue to get bigger and give you additional privacy along the fence. In between them are purple paper irises. They both bloom mid summer.
